Tips and tricks to keeping Explorers engaged while practicing Social Distancing

GO DIGITAL!

While meeting in person is not a feasible option right now, staying connected online is a great way to keep Exploring strong while keeping leaders and Explorers safe!

SCHEDULE WEEKLY

Having weekly meetings online via sites like Zoom or Google Hangouts is a way to check in with your unit, give digital lessons in real time, and communicate important info while practicing safety.

CAREER ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

A good way to make use of this time at home is for Explorers to work on tasks to complete the CAA; many of which can be completed independently with leader approval. Visit www.exploring.org for more information about your career area's specific requirements.

USE ONLINE MEDIA

YouTube has several available teaching lessons for free. One way to use these in an exciting way is to review videos relevant to your career field (or make your own!) and have your youth answer questions regarding what they saw via email. This is a fun way to teach them lessons they may not otherwise receive due to access of equipment or time restraints!

FOLLOW US!

Stay connected to the Greenwich Council on Facebook by adding our pages for the latest updates!

Also, encourage Explorers to participate in online courses to stay active and learn a fun, new skill!

OFFER SUPPORT

During these uncertain times, many of us are worried and concerned. Please encourage Explorers & let them know that we will get through this together. Exploring is critical and remains strong despite the circumstances because of the commitment and dedication of leaders and units like you!
